Maryam Eisler, known to most of the art world as a collector, editor and uber-patron, is also an accomplished photographer. A series of her works that capture female figures in the New Mexico desert opened at London's Tristan Hoare gallery last week (Searching for Eve in the American West, until November 12). "I've never shared my work before, I've always been on the other side of the equation," Eisler says. The photographs are priced between £1,800 and £4,800.
